

Dear hiring team,

I am applying for the Event & Content Project Junior role because its balance of organisation and content closely matches my experience delivering programmes from brief through live delivery and evaluation. Over four years, I have coordinated cultural programmes, touring installations and public events, including a year-round programme of talks, workshops and performances across three venues that supported more than 70 events.

At Atelier Horizon, I produced six temporary exhibitions through to opening, coordinating artists, curators, fabricators, venues and accessibility partners. I also managed production schedules, supplier consultations and budgets up to EUR 180,000. This experience would help me contribute to The Galion Project's varied formats through reliable logistics, clear partner coordination and careful budget tracking.

Alongside delivery, I prepared public-programme briefs, production and transport documents, and post-event reports. I also created artist welcome packs and audience feedback summaries while coordinating handovers between programming, technical and communications teams. I would bring this combined operational and editorial perspective to your entrepreneur-focused events, together with genuine curiosity about the technology and start-up environment and a strong motivation to adopt generative AI and research tools as performance levers.

Yours sincerely,
Maya Laurent
